EVENTS OF INTEREST AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

A Chatty and Interesting Letter Giving Sidelight Events at the Seat of Government.

TOPICS OF GENERAL INTEREST

By C. C. JONES
(Special Correspondent of the Gazette)

Commissioner Quezon, of the Philippine Islands, suggests that his people be permitted to vote upon the question of separation from the United States, and he frankly states it as his opinion that the Filipinos desire to continue under the protection of the United States, though he positively declaims in favor of self government. Perhaps Mr. Quezon is afraid of the Japanese domination, and it has been suggested that he wants to take home an issue for his people to vote upon, so that he and his fellow politicians who control the situation, may be perpetuated. At each session of Congress Quezon makes a speech, and he hammers well at the Queen's English, considering the fact that he was formerly one of the insurrectionists. At the time of the American occupation Quezon was employed in a bank, but he left his job to join Aguinaldo, and although he may not be as good a fighter as his chief, he furnished more noise. He talked as fast as a race horse, and the Filipinos sent him to Washington. He is still talking, and he never fails to make a good case for his people. Should there ever be absolute independence in the Islands, Quezon would likely be the first George Washington of the establishment. But even that would not be any too great a comfort for a commissioner who has enjoyed the salubrious climate, and worked himself into the pleasant ways of the Capital of the United States.

UNCLE SAM'LL GET YOU A JOB.

Some of the Cabinet officials at Washington have arrived at the proper conclusion that in America there is a job for everybody, and they have picked out the postmasters as the goats. Every man who wants a job is supposed to tell the man at the general delivery window. The Department of Labor is the real instigator of the plan, but has been obliged to fall back on the Postoffice and Agricultural Departments to help it in the execution of the work, as its own force is small and rather inefficient.

Students of the problem do not bank much on the new scheme of solution and since the percentage of population is more than double in cities as compared with the rest of the country, to what it was a quarter of a century ago, it is believed by those best qualified to know that the true relief exists in making a success of the "back to the farm movement," which was so near and dear to the hearts of the politicians a few years ago, but which appears to have been abandoned because of the difficulties it presented.

THE RING IS STILL THERE.

A good many politicians have been getting a lot of comfort out of the supposed retirement of Colonel Roosevelt, who described himself recently as "the privatest kind of a private citizen." Recently it has been discovered that all that is lacking to make the picture of Progressivism complete is for the Colonel to toss off his hat, as it has developed that the ring is still where it used to be. And the intimate friends of the Colonel in Washington declare that there will be three tickets in the field in 1916. And so the local politicians can start figuring out whether this tip is important or not.

THE FIGHT OF THE RAILROADS.

In former days the railroads fought their battles before legislatures, and their agents wrote out passes that filled many trainloads. Today the railroads are making a vigorous fight, but it is to convince the public to their way of thinking. They are spending fortunes in getting their side of the case printed, and into the hands of the American people. Cards are all down on the table at last, and it is to the public that the former autocrats now appeal for a "square deal."

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

President Wilson put so much punch into his Indiana speech that even blissful Washington was startled. No President has so carefully kept his own counsel in recent years, and Mr. Wilson, feeling that his case had been established, went abroad, and after defying all critics, let it be understood that he would be the Democratic candidate for 1916. Democrats in Congress declare that the President has put across some "great stuff," while the Republicans, who have not forgotten the mischief of the Taft tariff speech at Winona, declare that Mr. Wilson has put his foot in deep in the mud as Taft's was in the mire. One thing is certain, and that is that the mild-mannered Woodrow Wilson out-Wilsoned himself in casting discretion to the four winds, and in unbosoming himself to the country. Therefore the Indianapolis speech is a record-marker, and should be carefully studied by every American voter.

SUFFRAGE BEFORE CONGRESS.

The suffragists, like some other members of society, are ever with us, and the "fair ones" have been impressing themselves upon Washington again. President Wilson has given the ladies small comfort, as he always tells them to take their affairs up with the different states. Congress gives inch by inch on the proposition, and the recent developments in the House demonstrate the fact that only an overwhelmingly public sentiment can bring that body to vote in favor of submitting the question of a constitutional amendment to the states. While suffrage has been gaining there is little to indicate that it will carry as a national measure in many years. One reason for this is that Congressmen are perfectly willing to orate in favor of women's suffrage, and they "think it may work fine in somebody else's state," but they do not at heart welcome it, or any other reform that has their own future in keeping. Equal suffrage gets too close to the Congressman's job to particularly appeal to him.

HOW'S YOUR HEALTH?

Senator Works, of California, has made a notable attack on the Public Health Service, arraigning it as an "autocratic power to restrain and imprison a citizen and prescribe and enforce the habits of the people." While attacking the "doctor's trust" the Senator prescribes as a remedy for the ills and difficulties of mankind that everyone take up Christian Science. The Senator's panacea for human ills may not appeal to a very large percentage of the public, yet there is nothing new in his attack upon the American Medical Association as a "powerful political organization," and in support of this oft-repeated charge is the difficulty experienced in such schools of medicine as Homoeopathy, Osteopathy, Electics, etc., in fighting their way into recognition. In olden times all roads led to Rome, and today there are plenty of people at the side of each road that will tell you positively that it is the sure pathway to health.

"MADE IN AMERICA."

"I pledge myself for the welfare of my country, while the war lasts, to demand and buy, whenever possible, everything made in the U. S. A., and to urge my friends to do likewise."

The names of Cabinet officers, governors, and prominent public men have been subscribed to this pledge, and the people of the United States are asked to come to the support of this principle. And who will dispute but what the league responsible for this work is performing as useful a mission as the ladies of society who go about with their knitting needles and yarn, and boast of their accomplishments in making socks for soldiers?

LAYING IT ON TO BRYAN.

It has become wonderfully popular to "lay it on to Bryan," no matter what happens. His friends say the answer lies in the fact that Bryan stands for prohibition and that the liquor interests are striving to annihilate him through cowardly ridicule.

VERY MANY BOUNTY CLAIMS ARE FILED

Commissioners' Decision to Pay Brings Stacks of Applications.

Applications for the payment of bounties on noxious animals have poured into the office of the Bucks County Commissioners following the announcement on Tuesday that the board would begin payment of these bounties. But the persons entitled to the bounties will suffer some delay through defective certificates which they have had. Commissioners' Clerk Washington Cadwallader had a table stacked full of applications in the Commissioners' office in the court house on Wednesday, nine-tenths of which contained defects that must be corrected before the bounties can be paid. The papers were sent in by justices of peace who are authorized by the law to take affidavits and certificates of persons entitled to bounties and then collect the money from the Commissioners for them.

The papers are defective in various ways, but three principal errors occur. In many of the certificates the authorization to the justice to collect the bounty is either not signed by the applicant or not filled out by the justice. Many affidavits set forth simply that a "hawk" has been killed. There are only two varieties of hawks upon which bounties are paid under the law. One is the goshawk and the other the sharpshinned hawk. Other affidavits show that an "owl" has been destroyed. Nothing but a great horned owl is mentioned in the bounty law and simply a statement of an owl having been killed will not entitle the applicant to the bounty. The fox bounty is also apparently a puzzle to the applicants and to the justices. Numerous affidavits set forth a "fox" has been killed. It is the gray, not the red, fox that comes within the provision of the bounty act. Very often justices have been at loss to determine whether the carcass brought to them is that of a red or gray fox. Interbreeding has so mixed the appearance of the animal that in many instances it is apparently half and half.

EMBROIDERY CLASS MEETS

Entertained at the Home of Mrs. J. C. Everitt, Hulmeville.

The ladies of the embroidery class of which Mrs. J. C. Everitt is a member, met at her home in Hulmeville. There were ten members present: Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Snoyer, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Jefferies, Mrs. Evans, Mrs. Betz, Mrs. Bunting, Mrs. Beam, Mrs. Callanan. Although the day was stormy outside, everything was calm and peaceful inside. The hostess was sorry that all could not be present but the absent members were not forgotten. One good thing about the class is, there are four denominations represented, but never a word of dissension in regards to each other's religion. There are Baptist, Methodist, Episcopalian and Presbyterian. Supper was served by the hostess at which time the ladies always pass a very pleasant hour. Place cards had been prepared for each lady and laid on the plates and were read just before the dessert was served and then taken home as souvenirs. After supper the minutes were read and some jokes were passed, then Miss Marie Hanson entertained the class with a recitation and two solos. The ladies departed in a terrible storm. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Evans.

A residence, lodge and outbuildings with 45 acres of ground, at Eddington, fronting on the Delaware river and extending in depth to State road, has been sold by Mrs. Lewis A. Lommel to Mrs. Robert R. Logan for a price not disclosed. The sale was negotiated by Edgar G. Cross. The property adjoins the estate of Henry C. Fox, deceased, and in the immediate vicinity of the residences of Charles H. Smith and Yorke Stevenson. It was held for sale at $35,000. Recently Mrs. Walter S. Massey purchased a residence at Torresdale, also with a river front.

PARKLAND LOOT FOUND AT SMITH'S

Prisoners Suspected of Ransacking Seventeen Cottages.

Suspicion that Harry and Howard Smith and George Foster, of Hulmeville, now in Doylestown jail awaiting trial upon a charge of chicken stealing, were implicated in the looting of summer cottages at Parkland, State Trooper Harry Rhoads and Officer A. R. Atkinson, of Doylestown, made a search of the homes of the men on Saturday. The suspected men live in a house at Hulmeville divided into three dwellings. Provided with a search warrant, the officers made an investigation of this place on Saturday.

In the home of William Smith, father of the Smith brothers, the prisoners, the searchers found a phonograph, 40 records, two blankets and two quilts that had been taken from one of the burglarized Parkland bungalows. It was ascertained these things had just been moved into the father's house from that of Harry Smith. The officers made no further arrests.

Investigation has shown that recently seventeen of the cottages at Parkland have been broken open and robbed.

Insurance Company Elects Officers.

The Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Philadelphia and Bucks Counties, held its annual meeting on Thursday, January 14th, the directors' meeting in the morning and the policy holders' in the afternoon.

All of the old board of directors were re-elected: John C. Cornell, of Holland, was elected president; Elisha C. Praul, of Hulmeville, treasurer, and Howard Vansant, of Hulmeville, secretary.

The company did a very nice business last year and have only made three assessments during the last five years, so that the cost of insurance in this company has been extremely low.

From the waters of the northwest coast of Western Australia a total of 25,440 hundredweights of mother-of-pearl shell was fished, at an average selling price last year of $1250 a ton.

INTERESTING ITEMS FROM EDGELY

No clue has been obtained as to the identity of the highwaymen who held up and robbed Fred Bennett, of Trenton, near the Delaware schoolhouse last Thursday night. Mr. Bennett had been to Headley Manor to collect some money and finding he had missed a trolley car, started to walk up the pike to Tullytown. When near the schoolhouse he was accosted by a negro and a white man and asked for a match. When complying with the request, he was felled by a blow on the head and relieved of $26. Upon regaining consciousness Mr. Bennett walked to Tullytown and reported the matter to the authorities.

A posse was formed and the surrounding territory combed but no trace of the highwaymen could be found.

The same evening that the holdup occurred, the Delaware schoolhouse was entered and all of the children's pads and lead pencils were stolen.

It is also reported that the house occupied by the light tender at the Tullytown wharf was ransacked, but nothing was found to be missing.

The residents of this place have armed themselves and are prepared to give the robbers a warm reception if they are captured.

Three large pine trees on the property of William L. Johnson, at Riverview, were blown down by the storm last week and Mr. Johnson has had them cut up into cord wood lengths, getting over three cords of wood out of them.

A new tin roof is being put on the house at Riverview wharf belonging to John L. Hibbs, to replace the one blown off last week.

The house being erected at this place for Mrs. Mayer is nearly completed and will be ready for occupancy in a few weeks.

Mrs. Robert C. Lisher, of upper Edgely, was the guest of Philadelphia friends the forepart of the week.

William Weldon, of Philadelphia, was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Remine, at "Cozy Nook."

Harry S. McLaughlin, of Riverview, is building an up-to-date chicken house and expects to increase his flock to several hundred. He is having great success and is getting lots of eggs.

Edward Van Sciver, of this place, was the guest of relatives in Burlington on Sunday.

George W. Shultz, of Headley Manor, who has been partially paralyzed since he was shot in the head several months ago, has so far improved as to be able to walk to the trolley cars and go to Bristol for treatment, and it is expected that he will soon be able to resume his position on the railroad.

The extremely high tides of the past week have caused considerable damage to the stone wall along the river front at this place, spaces of twenty-five and thirty feet being washed away at several points.

The old pond near the canal at this place, known as "Stockton's pond," for years a favorite spot for pike and bass, has been depleted of fish. The recent freeze evidently killed all of the fish, as hundreds of dead yellow perch, pike, bass and catfish are to be seen along the edge of the pond.

An effort is being made to revive the dances at the Headley Manor schoolhouse but the promoters are meeting with but little success.

This is your last opportunity to send in your subscription from Edgely to the fund for a new pumping engine for the Bristol fire department. William M. Remine has the list and if you wish your name included in the Edgely list send in your name at once, as the names will be printed in next week's issue of the Gazette. This is a most worthy cause and should be encouraged by a contribution from every resident of the village.

Lewis T. Dunbar and Paul Shultz have erected a fine new aerial for their wireless at Headley Manor in place of the one destroyed by last week's storm.

Roy Harrington, of Philadelphia, was a Sunday guest of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Shultz, of Headley Manor.

Howard Johnson, of Riverview, attended a theatre party at the "Globe" in Philadelphia, on Saturday.

A large number of fine suckers are being caught in the river since the ice came down.

Mr. and Mrs. William Williams, of Philadelphia, were recent guests of their son, Joseph, of this place.

Elmer Allen and brother, Warner, of Headley Manor, have completed the studding of their homes and now have two of the most desirable homes in the Manor.

William P. Young, of Headley Manor, who was recently granted a patent on a non-slipping horseshoe, has been offered a neat sum for the same, but has refused to sell.

Charles C. Strumfels, of the pike, has the chicken fever, and will soon be a full-fledged fancier.

Work on the new building of the foundry at Green Lane, is progressing rapidly and it is expected that the plant will be put in operation in the spring. The foundry is now very busy and the prospects for the coming year are brighter than they have been for a long time.

The recent rains spoiled the skating on the canal at this place, much to the regret of the younger set. Skating has been very good this season and no doubt there will be more of it.

A. J. Blackford, of upper Edgely, has gone to Chicago and other points in Illinois, where he will spend the winter.

The plan for organizing a village improvement association is not meeting with the success that was anticipated. Everyone seems to be afraid to take the initiative. Get together and let the good work go on.

William A. Girton, of upper Edgely, attended the funeral of an old comrade in Philadelphia, on Tuesday, William H. Redheffer, who served for three years in the same company in the Civil War with Mr. Girton.

Jesse McLaughlin, of Camden, N. J., was the week-end guest of his brother, Harry, at Riverview.

NEGRO ARRESTED, VALUABLES FOUND

Morrisville Home Entered While Family Was Seated in the Sitting Room.

In the arrest of Zeba Pierson, a negro, who was captured by Constable Edmund Mason Sunday night, after being identified as the man who entered the home of Conrad Bush, of Washington street, the authorities believe the officer has made one of the most important arrests in recent months.

Valuable cutlery and jewelry was found on the prisoner by the constable.

The negro entered the Bush home by the rear door while the family was seated in the sitting room, and when Mrs. Bush saw the big negro walking around in the kitchen she screamed. She procured a revolver and fired at the intruder but he escaped. The matter was reported to Constable Mason and he found the negro waiting for a Philadelphia trolley car later in the evening. He was identified by Mrs. Bush.

LANGHORNE

Mrs. Harry C. Fite, of Hatboro, opened a dancing school in the I. O. O. F. hall last week with Miss Kathleen Carlin, instructor. Special attention is given to children and the little ones respond most gracefully to the instruction. The mothers are invited to attend the class which meets every Wednesday afternoon from 4 to 6, those desiring private lessons coming prior to these hours. A pleasing feature of the opening afternoon was a demonstration of the fashionable dances by Thelma Fite, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Fite, her partner being Kenneth Wood, of Hatboro. Mrs. Fite has established classes in Horsham, Hatboro, and Doylestown and from the attendance on Wednesday it bids fair to be a popular innovation in Langhorne.

There will be an "Invitation Evening" on February 2nd, for Sorosis members and their friends, at which time there will be a musicale and a play entitled, "Not a Man in the House."

John LeCompte, Jr., of Hulmeville, was a week-end visitor of Finley Knott's.

A musicale and package party was given by Sorosis at the club house last Thursday evening, which was very much enjoyed. The admission consisted of a package containing an article worth not less than ten cents, which were auctioned off at the close of the evening by Samuel Longshore, causing much merriment. About $28 were realized from the sale. The musicale opened with a "Marching Song," by the Sorosis chorus; violin and piano duet, Clifford C. Riggs and Mrs. James J. The W. C. T. U. meeting that was to have been held at the home of Miss Esther B. Justice, will be held at the Sorosis club house instead, on Friday, January 29th, at 2.30 o'clock. It will be a suffrage meeting and will be addressed by Mrs. Gledhill, of Bristol. Everybody is cordially invited to be present and enjoy the meeting and also the social hour following.

The inside of the car is fitted up with a mattress and a home-made folding bed device. In one corner is a small oil stove for cooking and heating. The car also has lockers for carrying food and nearly all the contrivances of a modern kitchen on a miniature scale, except [illegible] water.

YOUTH WHO MURDERED A FALLSINGTON WOMAN PARDONED BY TENER

Served Less Than Seven Years of a Twenty-year Term.

CONVICTED BEFORE STAPLES

A telegram from Harrisburg, dated January 16, says: "The last pardon to be issued under the present State Board of Pardons was sent out today for Joseph Banzer, Bucks, sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment for second degree murder. He was recommended at the recent meeting."

SENTENCED BY JUDGE STAPLES.

Joseph Benzer, aged 16 years, and Hermann Haubt, aged 17 years, were convicted in the Bucks County Criminal Court of second degree murder on September 25, 1908, for killing Mrs. Francis Kade, of Fallsington. The trial was held before Judge Charles B. Staples, of Stroudsburg, who was assisting Judge Mahlon H. Stout at that term. The Commonwealth was represented by Judge William C. Ryan, then District Attorney, and the prisoners' counsel were George Ross and Harry J. Shoemaker, by appointment of the Court. This was the first big case in which George Ross was engaged after his admission to the bar, and the ability with which he handled it attracted much attention.

The prisoners' counsel made a motion, at the opening of the case, to quash the bill of indictment on the ground that John T. Fish, the foreman, of the Grand Jury, which at the May Criminal Court had found a true bill, was active in procuring evidence against the boys. Judge Staples overruled the motion.

Banzer and Haubt were convicted of murder in the second degree, the jury reaching a verdict at 11 o'clock on the night of the day the trial began. On October 6th Judge Staples sentenced each of the convicted men to 20 years in the Eastern Penitentiary, the full penalty for that grade of crime. Banzer has served only six years and three months of his term.

Neither of the men's counsel, Messrs. Ross and Shoemaker, were interested in securing a pardon, and it is not known here who presented the petition. Mr. Ross expressed surprise on Monday morning, when informed of the action of the Board of Pardons, that Banzer, who was evidently the instigator of the crime, should be pardoned and Haubt not receive the same consideration.

HISTORY OF THE CRIME.

The murder was committed early on Saturday morning, March 28, 1908. Mrs. Kade, the victim, resided alone in a little house near Fallsington, her husband at the time being in Doylestown jail, serving a sentence of six months for the larceny of wood from a woods not far from their home. The Kades were Germans and had only recently moved into the neighborhood.

Banzer and Haubt, who lived in Trenton, N. J., heard that Mrs. Kade had a sum of money in the house. On the night stated they crossed the river and went to Fallsington, where they entered the Kade home through a window. The noise made by the burglars aroused Mrs. Kade, who seized the lamp and rushed out of her bedroom into the hallway.

As she did so one of the men struck her with a club and she fell over the doorstep at the entrance to the house. The men then fled. The next morning the murder was discovered by a boy who saw a woman's head protruding out of the doorway on the doorstep as he passed the house.

The detectives were engaged on the case for a week before suspicion was directed towards Banzer and Haubt, who were under arrest in Trenton for stealing chickens. The boys made a confession, in which they admitted the crime, but each accused the other of inflicting the blow with the club upon Mrs. Kade. It was never clearly established which one of the men wielded the club. Both prisoners claimed that after she had been struck Mrs. Kade ran on towards the door, tripped and fell into the doorway, where her body was found.

The trial attracted a great deal of attention. At its conclusion counsel for the prisoners moved for a new trial but the motion was subsequently withdrawn.

WOMAN INJURED IN EXCITING RUNAWAY

Miss Felton, of Newtown, Has Terrifying Experience.

Miss Lillian Felton, daughter of James R. Felton, living on a farm formerly owned by R. J. Linton, a half mile north of Newtown, was seriously injured in a runaway shortly after noon last Thursday. After Miss Felton had taken her seat in the falling-top buggy, the hired man attempted to change the horse's bridle. While he was doing this the horse took fright at the top of the carriage and ran away.

The animal ran at high speed into Newtown at Jefferson street, then to State street, through the entire town on State, turning into Kenderdine's office in the lower end of the town. There the carriage was overturned and Miss Felton, who was obliged to sit in the carriage helpless as the horse sped wildly on its long run, was thrown out. A moment later the horse reared into the air, plunged forward and fell dead in its tracks.

Miss Felton, covered with mud, was removed to the Kenderdine office, where Dr. Parker, who was summoned, found that she had her left arm badly broken at the elbow and her knee seriously injured. The fracture of the arm is serious, the break extending into the elbow joint.

NEWTOWN

Dr. and Mrs. N. J. Morgan, of Philadelphia, were week end guests of Mrs. Sarah F. Carey.

The entertainment under the auspices of the New Century Club was a great success. The hall was filled to its capacity on both Thursday and Friday nights. About $90 will be put into the club treasury from the show.

The local teachers' institute will be held in Newtown hall on Friday and Saturday of this week, with sessions afternoon and evening. Friday evening Dr. Charles Calvert Ellis, the popular lecturer, will make his initial appearance at Newtown. The Apollo Quartette will furnish the entertainment on Saturday evening. Miss Lavinia Eyre entertained informally with a dinner and dance on Thursday evening.

A meeting of the New Century Club was held on Wednesday afternoon when a program on "The South; its homes, schools and industries," was enjoyed.

On Saturday, the 16th, the messenger of death claimed one of Newtown's best known and highly respected women, Mrs. March C. Burrill, wife of J. C. Burrill. For many years she conducted a dry goods store here, but retired from business about five years ago. She has always been an active worker in the Prysbyterian church and in the philanthropic organizations of the town. At the time of her death she was a member of the executive committee of the New Century Club and president of the Newtown W. C. T. U., which office she held for the past four years. Her funeral was conducted Wednesday morning at the Presbyterian chapel, when the members of the W. C. T. U. attended in a body to pay tribute to a dearly loved leader.

A serious runaway accident occurred last Thursday afternoon. Miss Lillian Felton, daughter of James R. Felton, living about a half mile north of town, was sitting in a falling-top carriage, about ready to drive into town, when the hired man decided it was best to change the horse's bridle. So one was taken off, but before another could be substituted the horse frightened and ran furiously down the road to Newtown, with Miss Felton sitting in the carriage perfectly helpless. The horse tore its mad career the full length of State street, then made a quick turn into Kenderdine's business stand. Then the wagon struck a corner of the building and Miss Felton was thrown out. She was seriously injured, an arm broken, knee and face badly bruised and is suffering from the nervous shock. The horse, a valuable roan, dropped dead when the wagon struck the building. Many people saw the horse in its mad career but without its bridle could not stop the wild animal.

The Newtown W. C. T. U. observed a national constitutional prohibition amendment day on Monday. Services were held in the M. E. church, afternoon and evening. The L. T. L. girls gave a prohibition demonstration at the afternoon meeting and the Young People's Branch of the W. C. T. U. took part in the evening program. Special prayers of thanksgiving for the past year's achievements was the keynote of the afternoon service. All the ministers of the various Protestant denominations of the town took part during the day, and through these meetings a fresh impetus was given the temperance cause here.

REVIEW OF IMPORTANT EVENTS AT COUNTY SEAT

Interesting Correspondence From Our Doylestown Representative.

Doylestown, January 20.

Democratic County Chairman, J. Ralphus Freed, Esq., one of the prominent members of the Bucks county bar, who has been ill for some weeks and who was very seriously ill, is now much improved and it is believed that he will recover.

County seat workers for the Red Cross are again engaged in the work and hope to soon have a much larger contribution than that of just before Christmas. One reason for this is that the work is now being done more systematically and that the working force is increased. Some of the men of leisure at the county seat are putting in their spare time in knitting scarfs, socks, etc., for the work.

As an indication of the strenuous hard times that are oppressing the people of this section of the country the Doylestown worsted mill has installed twelve new looms and has orders ahead and our silk mills are now employing fifty-four persons, an increase, and finding a ready market for their goods. While business has not been anything extra, it is improving all the time and soon more hands will be required to fill the accumulating orders. One of the firm said last week: "Some day soon we expect to have another mill erected and in operation."

Last Friday Doylestown had its first cow sale for many weks. Owing to the prevalence of the foot and mouth disease, cow sales were not allowed to be held and the carload just sold arrived here just after the quarantine was put on cattle. At one time it looked as though we would be laboring under an exceedingly inconvenient situation as the first of April is approaching and many farms will change hands, so that if cows could not be moved, the persons required to vacate would not have known what to do. Sheriff Charles M. Meredith and his able deputy, Nelson Leatherman, had the fan tar tiffs over some cattle levied on and kept the telephone wires hot with messages to the authorities in Norristown because each and every day different instructions were received through the mail, but happily the disease is practically at an end in this county and cows are again normal.

Poultry of high degree is now in the public eye because the postponed poultry show started Wednesday with about three hundred fine birds in the show. There are about sixty exhibitors and some of the finest strains of several prominent varieties of fowls are on exhibition. It is the largest and finest ever held here and will draw quite a good deal of attention because nearly everyone who has the facilities is now keeping chickens. Of course, the Wyandottes, Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds and Orpingtons have the largest representations, but many other varieties are also on exhibition.

Last Saturday night was Firemen's night at the Billy Sunday tabernacle, but few, if any, of our Doylestown fire laddies took advantage of the opportunity to attend. Naturally a large number of people have attended and some are attending quite frequently, but up to this time none have hit the "sawdust trail," although we have plenty of material here for trail hitters. Opinions of Billy and his work are as numerous as the individuals who have heard him. At one of his sessions the Philadelphia newspapers printed a story that a man by the name of Daniels, hailing from Doylestown, was ejected in a drunken condition, but as there is no one of that name a resident of the county seat, it could not possibly have been a Doylestown man. Anyhow, our men don't do that sort of thing.

Civil Court is in full swing this week and will last through another week, which places the list in fair condition again. One of the cases of interest was the suit of Archbishop Prendergast against the Board of Health of South Langhorne for damages done to the church there by a fumigation given the church last April. It seems from the testimony that an excessive quantity of disinfectant was used which practically ruined the interior of the church, as well as many valuable vestments, some of which cannot be replaced. The Board of Health is being sued as individuals and not in their official capacity, it being alleged that they proceeded with the fumigation without having any knowledge of how the chemicals were to be used and by the use of an excessive quantity caused the damage.

Borough Council last Monday night took a course of gasoline administered by J. W. Daniels, a gas expert, in the employ of the Atlantic Refining Company, who have a large storage tank and several small ones in the southern part of the borough. If Mr. Daniels is correct in his assertions, gasoline is about the least dangerous fluid, water excepted, in existence. He said that he would not hesitate for a moment to set fire to the vents of the tank and was entirely sure that there was no possibility of an explosion. He insisted on his desire to give a practical demonstration of the non-explosive properties of gasoline and said that it had a very much worse name than it could by any possibility deserve. So convincing were his arguments that further consideration of the ordinance to eliminate the danger from the tanks was postponed until next spring, in other words, indefinitely. A committee was appointed to prepare an ordinance which will place all bill-posting in the hands of an official bill poster, but nothing was said about the nuisance of bills, advertisements, etc., scattered in the front yards and on the front porches. As council doubts, the right for the Board of Health to let a contract for garbage collecting, that necessary plan will probably be dropped.

Lord Tennyson's eldest son, the Honorable Lionel Tennyson, of the Rifle Guards, is not suffering from wounds as was at first announced. After going unscathed through the fighting in France from the beginning he had the misfortune, while leading a patrol on a reconnaissance at night, to fall into a large hole some twelve feet deep made by a German shell. The muscles and tendons of one leg are severely sprained, necessitating complete rest for a while. Lionel Tennyson is a grandson of the late poet laureate.

Lady Eileen Knox, great-great-great-great-granddaughter of William Penn, was married quietly in London last month to Mr. Charles L. Carlos Clarke, Royal Bucks Hussars. The bride is the youngest daughter of the Earl of Ranfurly.

Petrograd, in the days when it was St. Petersburg, was one of the gayest cities at night in Europe. Stupendous quantities of champagne were drunk nightly, and the restaurants were at their brightest in the early hours. But Petrograd, like London, is learning to go to bed early nowadays, and is thoroughly teetotal.

LIVESTOCK BOARD CALLS BREEDERS ATTENTION

Heavy Exportation of Horses to War Countries Going to Make Heavy Demand for Good Stock.

BREEDING WILL BE PROFITABLE

Carl W. Gay, Director of Horse Breeding of the State Livestock Sanitary Board, has issued the following timely and important notice to Pennsylvania horse breeders.

Horse market events have taken such a definite turn that there can no longer be any question of the outcome of horse breeding in this country, hence we feel fully warranted in bringing the production of market horses to every farmer's attention.

Following are a few facts worthy of note:

1. There is every indication that the normal demand for business and farm horses will be resumed this spring.
2. With the exportation of some 500,000 horses during this year, many of which are of the sort required here the supply with which to meet the home demand is sadly depleted.
3. Foreign demand marked the exhaustion of foreign supply, therefore, we may expect the call for our horses, from abroad, to continue long after the war is over.
4. This country's supply of market horses is furnished, in large part, by foreign sires, the importation of which cannot be resumed until the continental and even the British districts have recovered from the devastating and depopulating effects of the war. In the meantime American breeders will have to depend upon home-bred breeding stock, which, as a result, should be much in demand.
5. The most reliable predictions are for unprecedented high prices in the future.

In confirmation of the above the following quotations are offered:

"The great scarcity all over western Europe when the war is ended will be of hard, mature horses, six or seven years and upwards, suitable for town and city work. This will be a great problem. How are they to be had? In spite of the high prices it will be very difficult to fill the demand. There will be great activity in horse breeding all over the world. The American farmer should keep more mares and work and breed from them wherever possible. This is the time to begin for those not already in the game.

"This great war has proved one thing—that the horse is indispensable and always will be."—John Ashton, Bressler's Gazette.

"Never were the guide posts lettered so plainly, seldom has the turn in the lane been so short a distance ahead, never has the prospect for the horse breeders been tinted with quite so rich a rosy hue."—John Mason, National Stockman and Farmer.

In view of these facts the following recommendations are made to Pennsylvania horse breeders:

1. Do not take advantage of the present war demand to sacrifice horses which will have greater value in the spring trade.
2. Thin geldings and mares of the right type should make good profit on present cost when fit for market later in the year.
3. Anticipate the market rise by buying required horses now.
4. Breed your mares, but to pure-bred stallions of merit and proven worth as sires. We hope there will never be another war to absorb the product of our errors and short sighted policy in the patronage of cheap sires.
5. Study the markets; know what your colts are worth and secure full value for them.
6. Hold well selected breeding stock in highest regard in view of the responsibility imposed upon American breeders by the suspension of importations and the destruction of breeding stock abroad.
7. Sit tight; do not get panic stricken but restore your confidence in the horse business; proceed intelligently; aim high.

OVERDRAWING YOUR HEALTH ACCOUNT.

Little Talks on Health and Hygiene By SAMUEL G. DIXON, M. D., LL. D., Commissioner of Health.

We are all more or less familiar with the strict rules of banks in regard to individual credit. We do not expect to be permitted to overdraw our accounts. But with our drafts on the Bank of Health the majority of us expect more liberal treatment. Overdrafts, promises to pay, notes of hand we give with a prodigal spirit and growl mightily if called to account by Mother Nature for extravagance.

Everyone begins life with a certain amount of capital in the way of health and resistance to disease. This varies in different individuals according to the physique which they have inherited from their parents plus or minus the conditions under which they developed in their youth. We start life as men and women with this variable amount to our credit. When it has been expended we are through.

Every dissipation and every illness which means the expenditure of physical energy withdraws just so much from your health account. It is common enough to hear people who have been ill speak of being "cured" but physicians are well aware that this is a relative term only. Every serious illness has its effect upon the system and even though we may feel no decided change, almost invariably there has been some diminution from normal.

It is the same with exhaustion from excesses, physical and mental strain. Subject yourself to these trials and after a period of rest you may recuperate. However, if you continue this recuperation will be slower and slower and eventually the over-strained machinery will break down. For this reason it behooves everyone to exercise reasonable caution and restraint in eating and the expenditure of physical and mental energy. Remember that the doctor cannot restore that which is already lost.

Expend your energies with discretion and keep the balance of your health account as much in your favor as possible never exhausting it.

New Band at Morrisville Flourishing.

At a meeting of the Morrisville Band held last Friday evening, the following officers were elected: President, Frank Pope; secretary, Clarkson Lilley; treasurer, William Winner; leader, C. E. Neale. The band, which was organized last May, is making splendid strides and new uniforms will be purchased for the members within the next few days. A number of new instruments have been purchased and were used this week at the rehearsal. There are 25 members on the roll and it is expected that the band will become one of the most successful organizations in the town.

At the Bristol Theatre.

The performance given by the "Daisy Maids" at the Bristol Theatre last Saturday evening proved to be a good one and the house was filled to its capacity. The management says that for tomorrow night another first-class musical comedy company has been secured and a good entertainment is promised. There will also be a matinee tomorrow afternoon at which the children will be admitted free.

THE GOVERNOR'S APPOINTMENTS AND HIS MESSAGE.

It is with mingled emotions that the average independent voter contemplates the induction into office of Governor Brumbaugh.

His inaugural message to the citizens of the Commonwealth and to the members of the Legislature is inspiring, forceful and entirely satisfactory, but his appointment of two members of his cabinet leaves one in doubt as to the sincerity of the message which followed the morning after the announcement of the selection of Francis Shunk Brown, for Secretary of the Commonwealth, and Cyrus E. Woods, for Attorney General.

Dr. Brumbaugh repeatedly during the campaign appealed to the independent voters and proclaimed in the most emphatic language his freedom from political entanglements and alliances and the people took him at his word because they had faith in the man and he was triumphantly elected.

The appointment of the two members of his official family who will be close to him during his administration, has every indication of being selections made to gratify politicial machine leaders.

It cannot be gainsaid that Mr. Brown is an able and adroit lawyer, because he is all of that. He is a leader in his profession, but he is also a crafty, sinuous politician and is really the brains that has dominated the Vare faction in the internecine political strifes that have been waged in the City of Brotherly Love. The appointment was made no doubt to please the Brothers Vare.

Former State Senator Cyrus E. Woods is a corporation lawyer, former Minister to Portugal by grace of President Taft, and a faithful adherent of Senator Penrose's. He was formerly President pro tem of the State Senate and never distinguished himself by running counter to the wishes of the "organization."

However, there is no question but that both men are highly capable, and if their actions and energies are directed in the line of the Governor's message great good to the Commonwealth will assuredly result.

There will be a general disposition to suspend judgment until the new administration strikes its stride.

The Gazette has received with the compliments of Lt.-Col. Lewis E. Beitler, secretary of Battle of Gettysburg Commission, a handsomely bound volume of 275 pages of the Commission's report of the great reunion of the Blue and the Gray on the historic battlefield of Gettysburg upon the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of the great battle. The book contains over a hundred pages of half-tone illustrations, a report of the commission, and the addresses made during the celebration. The book is a valuable one and the commission deserves the heartiest congratulations in preserving the records of the occasion in such a complete and artistic manner.

Following the trend of the times the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has decided not to seek a renewal of licenses for the sale of liquor now held in Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, and at the New York terminal of the railroad. With the termination of these licenses all connection of the Pennsylvania Railroad with booze selling will be terminated. It has been rather inconsistent in the company to require that its employes shall abstain from the use of liquor and at the same time engage in its sale.

STATE HIGHWAY ALONG THE DELAWARE

Road to Begin at Yardley—Travel Will Be Shifted to Pennsy Side of the River.

Surveying started last week on the proposed State Highway along the Delaware river from Yardley to Kintnersville. There is a strong probability that Pennsylvania will have a Delaware valley boulevard long before New Jersey gets any complete plan working for its long talked of highway.

For some time past it has been expected that the Pennsylvania State Highway Commission would construct a macadam road along the river, completing the section between Morrisville and Easton and its action in sending a corps of engineers to begin the survey indicates that some early move is contemplated. Some members of the engineering force are quartered at the Logan Inn, New Hope, and the rest are still at Newtown, finishing a section of survey from Philadelphia, but they are expected to leave that place soon.

It will probably take a couple of months to make the survey, the total distance from Yardley to Kintnersville being about 26 miles. If the survey follows the upper road from Yardley it may be possible to run the whole line without crossing the canal, if the road is carried through New Hope borough via New street and the Stockton avenue bridge, thence over an entirely new highway to the Reading station to the canal bridge near the upper end of the borough.

While no intimation of the department's plans have been announced, it is quite likely that this will be done, as the Stockton avenue bridge would save three new structures, one across the Aquetong creek, on Main street, and one across the canal again at the upper end of the borough. The saving in bridges would more than pay the cost of the new highway, including possible land damages, it is thought.

The construction of the macadam road on the Pennsylvania side of the river would shift a considerable portion of the travel in that section of the country, and would put the nearly villages of Brownsburg, Centre Bridge, Lumberville and Point Pleasant "on the map."

JANUARY CIVIL COURT TERM BEFORE JUDGE RYAN

Many Cases for Trial and Term Will Probably Cover Three Weeks.

REPORT OF THE PROCEEDINGS

Doylestown, January 20th.

January term of Court in Bucks county for the trial of civil and equity cases opened before Judge William C. Ryan on Tuesday morning. Owing to the long trial list before the Court, the term will cover a period of three weeks. Cases have been marked for trial throughout this week and next, and one case has been set for the week beginning February 1.

CONTINUED OR SETTLED.

When the trial list was called by Judge Ryan cases originally marked for trial at this term were disposed of as follows:

George W. Scarborough vs. Capitol View Fire Company, trespass, settled.

J. F. Hendricks vs. Anthony C. Demuth and Annatumna K. Smith, appeal, application for a continuance.

Earl M. Meyer, a minor, by his father and next friend, Ellis D. Moyer and Ellis D. Moyer in his own right, vs. Excelsior Electric Light, Power and Gas Company, trespass, settled.

MISCELLANEOUS BUSINESS.

Order of sale of real estate made in the estate of Frederick E. Davison, late of Milford, deceased.

Petition granted of Franklin W. Oehrle for release of legacy on tract of land in Warminster.

SUIT OVER FARM.

The first case called for trial was that of John C. Chakamatin vs. Charles Remstick. Shoemaker & Satterthwaite appeared as counsel for the plaintiff and Swartley & Bunting for the defendant.

Jury—W. Elmer Saxvacool, Charles Schantz, Alfred Woolman, Anselem Bohmler, A. L. Kulp, George A. Purdy, Alexander Forsythe, B. Frank Hellings, G. Warren Stack, Harry E. Snyder, Harrison E. Carver and William Moyer.

John Chickamatin, the plaintiff in the case, alleged that he had agreed to purchase a 50-acre farm at Chalfont belonging to the defendant, Charles Remstick, together with certain personal property on the place. The plaintiff, who was a grocer on Ridge avenue, Philadelphia, testified that he made the agreement to purchase through Real Estate Agent Walter H. Gross, Jr., Philadelphia, upon representation of Remstick that the place was free of encumbrances. This was on December 27, 1913. Suit was brought to recover a payment of $50 made at the time of agreement and other expenses the plaintiff had incurred in visiting his prospective purchase and for other purposes.

No testimony was produced for the defendant.

Tuesday morning trial was called a verdict for the plaintiff, John Chakamatin, in the sum of $130.19.

Counsel for the defendant at once filed a motion for a new trial.

CATHOLIC CHURCH SEEKS DAMAGES.

Tuesday morning trial was called of the case of Edmond Francis Prendergast, Archbishop of Philadelphia, vs. Joseph Lemke, Bernard Strickland, LeRoy Ridge and George Lemke.

Boyer & Vanartsdalen appeared as counsel for the plaintiff and J. Hibbs Buckman for the defendant.

Jury—Isaac Hetrick, Harvey A. Bryan, Christian F. Moyer, Alonzo R. Fox, Ira Kisher, Lafrue Hollings, Jacob L. Horn, B. Frank Hellings, William H. Cressman, John Longacre, Alexander Fox, Jr., and A. L. Kulp.

Defendants in this case are members of the Board of Health of South Langhorne. Last spring, about Easter time, the board fumigated the Church of Our Lady of Grace in that borough.

It was alleged by the plaintiff that an excessive quantity of fumigant was used, and that because of such improper use the woodwork, hangings, vestments and even the concrete floors were damaged and disfigured. It was contended that the board acted recklessly and carelessly, that there was no reason for fumigating the church, there being no contagious or infectious disease here, and that the whole matter was an arbitrary proceeding intended to damage the church.

Charles Sergeant, of Langhorne, who helped with the disinfecting done by the health board, and who has had about six years experience in fumigating buildings, was called as a witness. He appeared to be a very reluctant witness. Repeated queries by his counsel, however, brought forth the statement from him that he had been engaged to do the work by the health board.

Marshall was of the opinion that entirely too much fumigant was used. He had protested to members of the board, saying that the building would be injured. One of the members of the board had exclaimed: "To h—l with it!"

The witness said he told the members of the board what quantities to use but they didn't follow his directions.

"How much did you use?" asked Mr. Buckman.

Marshall couldn't remember. Neither could he remember when the work was done.

"Did you ever use this kind of material before?" Marshall was asked. He said he had not.

While admitting he knew very little about this sort of disinfectant, Marshall said if it wasn't used as he directed, and the pots containing the material boiled over.

"What was used to do the disinfecting?" asked Mr. Buckman.

"Amaldehyde."

"You mean formaldehyde?"

"Yes, sir, and white powder, was also used."

"Do you know what that powder was?"

"I don't know now. I was following Joe Lemke's directions."

Rev. M. A. Keegan, rector of the Church of Our Lady of Grace, described the process of fumigating the church building. This was on the Thursday after Easter. The Board of Health made the fumigation a condition upon which the church, which had been closed for two weeks, could be reopened.

There had been absolutely no cases of communicable diseases in the church previous to the fumigation. Father Keegan said he had almost been overcome with fumes when he entered the church the morning after the disinfecting had been done. There were eighteen pails of fumigant in the centre aisles, and they had boiled over like molten lava.

The witness said finish on hardwood floors and pews had been destroyed by the fumes. Some vestments were entirely destroyed. Others were injured but sent to a manufacturer in Philadelphia for repairs. They could not be repaired.

Articles of vestment were exhibited to the jury and their badly faded condition shown.

Among the destroyed vestments was a white satin set imported from Germany and worth $175, Father Keegan declared. It was covered with hand work in metal braid. The gold or silver braid on these were badly tarnished.

That all the brass candlesticks in the church were also badly tarnished, was the testimony of Father Keegan.

When cross-examined by Mr. Buckman, Father Keegan denied there had been any serious outbreak of communicable disease in the community. He admitted that there had been very severe cases of scarlet fever in the Geiss family, which caused the death of three children within ten days. The family, however, did not attend services at the time. He noticed no particular excitement in the neighborhood over the outbreak of disease. The Sunday school was closed the Sunday before Palm Sunday, because scarlet fever was pre-eminently a child disease.

The jury awarded the plaintiff $200.

A Reply to Worker.

Editor of Gazette.

Evidently "Worker," whose article appeared in last week's Gazette has never attended a service in St. James P. E. church during the last two years.

He states one reason men do not attend church is that the pastors are afraid to tell their flocks their duty. Should he attend St. James regularly twice each Sunday for a month, he will be of a different mind, for he will hear his duty described eight times at least.

The rector of this church is not afraid to tell any man, woman or child, no matter what station in life he or she occupies, their duty. No matter whether rich or poor, high or low, or what political party they belong to, they will get the same dose handed them.

He stands for truth as he sees it and points out the path of duty to one and all.

We need no "Billy" Sunday or any of his clown deputies or agents or "Mr" Sunday to preach here in Bristol, to tell people their duty. Let them congregate to St. James some service and I guarantee they will know it when they leave.

And there is another pastor who we must not forget, Rev. W. T. Johnston, pastor of the First Baptist church, of Bristol. Where is there another man who has defied public opinion and criticism when he spoke or did what he thought was right, as he has? These two men are vastly different and yet so entirely alike should be commended instead of being criticised as they have been.

They are not old fossils who preach the "dry as saw-dust theology" either, but manly men who stand on their convictions and principles and are not afraid to speak the truth.

Let me ask "Worker" not to blame the pastors but the men themselves. It seems that religion is a thing of the past, as though it belongs to another generation. It is diseased, almost dead, and I venture to say in another decade it will be no more unless men arouse themselves to action and fight the devil and his work, the carnal lusts of the flesh and the vain pomps of the wicked world.

I have heard people say the church is full of hypocrisy and they are better off at home. I cannot agree with them. If they go to church and have any reverence for God, they will hear and see nothing but good to be sought. If their heart is set on holy things their minds will not wander very far from the service.

If, on the other hand, they stay away from church, who can say what they are thinking or doing. These same people who say these things would point a finger in scorn at an adulterer or thief or murderer, yet they are no better. We are told in the Bible that "he who breaketh one commandment is guilty of all," and the fourth commandment bids us to keep the Lord's day holy," and how can we do it if we do not go to the Lord's house?

Oh, I know you may say we can read our Bibles and take our prayer book and read the epistle and gospel for the day, but how many do it. I might say one out of every hundred. For if they did read the Bible they would find in the Acts of the Apostles that the early Christians "met together every first day for the breaking of bread." And why did they do it? Because it is a Christ-like service, our Lord himself commanded every baptized person in the world today to to do the same and to those who are not baptized to be so as soon as possible. He told it to Nicodemus and he tells it to every unbaptized person today.

No, don't blame the pastors, blame the men themselves. If they read their Bible, as they claim, they don't need the pastors to tell them their duty. If they have a conscience that will tell them stronger than any minister, for that knows their shortcomings better than the minister does.

Therefore, "Worker," I invite you in the name of St. James parish to be in your midst any Sunday or other day service it is convenient to you and hear your duty as a Christian told to you. You may be a J. Pierpont Morgan or the President of the United States, or the King of England, or some poor beggar without a cent, but you will get the same measure meted out to you.

A MEMBER OF ST. JAMES

"The Coming of Rev. William Asher."

On February 4, the Rev. William Asher will come to Bristol. His coming has its possibilities and perils. The possibilities are great. He comes to call men to repentance toward God and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, and to those who receive his message and truly repent of their sins and believe on Him whom God hath sent, he will bring the promise of eternal life.

There will be many, we trust, who will be made "new creatures in Christ Jesus"—"who will taste and see that the Lord is gracious" and will know the unspeakable joy of the forgiveness of sins and fellowship with the Lord Jesus Christ.

Let us pray that it may be in Bristol as in apostolic days it was in the city of Samaria when "Philip went down and preached Christ unto them," and we read, "And the people with one accord gave heed unto those things which Philip spake," "and there was great joy in that city." See Acts 8:5-8.

But there are perils as well. There will be some who will not even come and hear the messenger, and some perhaps who will hear and not obey. To such God's word will not bring life but death. There will be some also who, like Jerusalem of old, "will not know the day of their visitation."

Over them God will call, but they will not answer and whose hearts will be left desolate.

Mr. Asher's coming will leave none of us just the same. It has possibilities and perils.

As a preparation for his coming a series of public prayer services will be held in the churches as follows:

On Monday evening, the 25th inst., in Baptist church.

On Tuesday evening, the 26th inst., St. Paul's P. E. church.

On Thursday evening, the 28th inst., Bristol M. E. church.

On Friday evening, the 29th inst., in Presbyterian church.

To these services all Christians are cordially invited.

On Monday and Tuesday of the following week there will be meetings for prayer in private homes, the time and place to be announced.

It is hoped that thus a spirit of supplication may spread throughout the whole community and that when Mr. Asher comes that we may be able to say to him as Cornelius said to Peter: "Now therefore are we all here present before God, to hear all things that are commanded thee of God."

CHARLES E. BURNS, D. D.,
Chairman of Committee.

Bristolians Drawn as Jurors.

The following Bristolians have been drawn to serve on the juries at the March term of Criminal Court:

Grand Jury—Joseph Muffet, John W. Birkey.

Traverse Jury—W. A. Burnhill, George Bentcliff, Earl Brown, J. Edward Lovett, Eugene Larrhee, William G. Minster, William T. Purcell, Eastwood Phipps and Owen Silk.

COUNTY TAX NOT RAISED

The Rate Will Be 3¼ Mills the Same as Last Year.

At a meeting of the Board of County Commissioners on Monday a preliminary estimate of the probable expenses of the county for the year 1915 was made.

TAX RATE 3½ MILLS.

Upon the estimate they made the board fixed the tax rate at 3½ mills, the same as last year's rate.

NEW BRIDGES WANTED.

Two delegations of residents from New Britain township appeared before the board and urged the building of new bridges.

One of the bridges petitioned for is on the road crossing the North Branch of the Neshaminy at Cope's Ford. The other bridge wanted is over a stream crossing the road from Chalfont to Colmar, at or near the Walter farm.

BOUNTIES PAID.

Of the thirty orders drawn, the largest was for $1,488 for bounties on noxious animals. The number of bounty bills still outstanding call for an amount larger even than that paid on Monday.

The milk of a single Roquefort sheep will in a year provide from thirty to forty pounds of cheese. In that district of France there are about eight thousand sheep devoted to the cheese industry.

BUCKS THRESHERMEN ORGANIZE A PROTEST

Delegates From Bucks and Montgomery Object Strenuously to Present Highway Regulations.

ESSENTIAL POINTS INVOLVED

The Bucks-Montgomery county section of the Pennsylvania Threshermen's Association was organized at a meeting held in the arbitration room at the court house, Doylestown, on Monday afternoon. Besides the election of officers and the transaction of other business the steam threshermen present made preparations to sound their portion of the protest that will be sent to the Highway Department of Pennsylvania against the stringent regulations that have been imposed upon traction steam threshers.

The steam threshermen at Monday's meeting were Joseph A. Rook, Ivyland; J. S. Eastburn, Buckmanville; W. G. Rumbles, Trenton, N. J.; William Lanner, Hatboro; T. K. Mason, Hatboro; R. L. Longshore, Woodbourne; Jonathan Roberts, Penns Park; James Constanger, Perkasie; F. O. Dubridge, Edison; A. D. Dudbridge, Edison; S. B. Wollman, Edgewood; Benjamin Ely, Chalfont, and Walter Wiley, Mechanicsville. Many additions to this membership are expected.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Officers were elected as follows: President, A. D. Dudbridge, Edison; vice president, T. K. Mason, Hatboro; treasurer, Jonathan Roberts, Penns Park; secretary, James Constanger, Perkasie.

A committee to represent the Bucks-Montgomery organization at the State convention of the Threshermen's Association, February 16 and 17, was appointed as follows: James Constanger, Jonathan Roberts, Charles Wilkins, William Lanner and Benjamin Ely.

Ira M. Hart, of Mechanicsburg, Pa., president of the State association, delivered an address to the assembled threshermen. Informal addresses were also made by W. G. Rumbles, manager of the Emer-on-Brantingham Manufacturing Company, of Trenton, N. J., and Mr. Moyer, a representative of the Huber Manufacturing Company, of Harrisburg.

THE THRESHERMEN'S PROTEST.

The protest which the threshermen will lay before the State Highway Department, embodies the following points:

That if the automobile law of 1913 restricting the weight and width of traction engines, the load they shall carry, the type and size of cleat they shall use on the wheels to an impractical and harmful equipment, is opposed to the interest of farmers and traction engine owners; and that it is more harmful to the highways than the traction engines formerly used, and is destructive of the rural business interests of the State without any just reason whatever.

That the regulations of the Highway Department requiring traction engine owners to agree to an ironclad contract assuming all responsibility for damages to roads and bridges, regardless of the condition of such roads and bridges, makes an impossible risk for traction engine owners.

That the rules of the Highway Department of Pennsylvania are founded upon those of New York and that the latter have been rescinded after investigation as unfair and discriminating.

That an investigation of the matter by the State Highway Commissioner would show the present regulations to be unjust, unnecessary, un-American and destructive of the basic interests of the State.

That threshermen and farmers should be given equal rights with other vehicles on the highways.

AN UNPARDONABLE PARDON

Newspaper Man Comments on Governor Tener's Action in Releasing Murderer.

"The Gossiper," an interesting daily writer and newspaper man, makes the following caustic comments regarding Governor Tener's action in pardoning Banzer, who deliberately murdered Mrs. Kade in her lonely home near Fallsington:

"For ten years, at least, I have been in fairly close touch as a newspaper man with the criminal affairs of the county, but I can recall no Bucks county case which has gone before the Board of Pardons which has aroused so much criticism as the action taken in pardoning Banzer, one of the two young men, the instigator, guilty of the brutal murder of young Mrs. Anton Kade in her lonely home in Falls township in 1908. Even one of the attorneys for the boys at the trial was amazed at the pardon of Banzer because of the character of the crime and particularly that it should be Banzer who was pardoned, as he is considered by some the instigator of the crime.

"While expressing his amazement over the action of the Board of Pardons a man interested in the trial said on Monday afternoon: "Why, it was only the greatest good fortune that the boys were not convicted of murder in the first degree. Only two things saved them. One was their youth; the other was the fact that one of the jurors who hung out for a first degree verdict was suffering from rheumatism." He named the juror.

"John T. Fish, justice of the peace at Fallsington, and a former Register of Wills, who was partly instrumental in the capture of the boys, told me, after the pardon had been announced, certain phases of the case with which I was unfamiliar, although I visited the scene of the crime immediately after the murder, saw the murdered woman and heard the talk in the community. Banzer, the ex-Register says, and he should know, was considered the instigator of the crime. He had visited Mrs. Kade a number of times and she was very fond of him. In fact her mention of an expected visit from him was one of the things which caused the officers to suspect him, together with the coat and cigarettes found after the crime. Banzer knew, too, it is said, that Mrs. Kade had within a few days gotten a large sum of money, and that she was alone in her isolated little cabinish-house.

"What the two young men did—Banzer and Haubt—was to go to the house late at night and murder the poor little woman as she came through the door of her bedroom. One struck her over the head and the other stabbed her in the breast. Either wound, the post-mortem showed, would have caused death.

"One of the saddest features of the whole case was that at the time of the crime, Mrs. Kade's husband was in the county jail for a trivial offense brought, it seems, under a misunderstanding. Kade, I am told, had picked up some poles which were near the line between his property and that of another man, unaware of the fact that they were on the other man's line. After the murder, which would probably not have happened had the husband been at home, the prosecutor learned the true situation and did all he could to have Kade released. In fact he was allowed to attend his wife's funeral.

"The whole thing was very, very sad, and the murder one of the most brutal, unprovoked and utterly wanton in the history of Bucks county. Men have been executed in Bucks county for murders no more horrible and one for a murder where there were far more extenuating circumstances.

"The pity of it is that the escape of the person guilty of such a brutal murder—set free after serving only about six years—will be pointed to by many persons as an evidence that the law does not provide adequate punishment for murders or protection against them for the law-abiding public."

DRIFTING.

Written for the Gazette by W. HAROLD MARTIN.

There is a ship and its name is Hope
And it sails on the sea called Love,
Its sails are white like the stars at night
That gladden the skies above.

It sails for a port that is hid in space
On a sea that has no chart,
Yet the captain bold has no fear, I'm told,
For faith is in his heart.

This ship called Hope is this heart of mine,
She's manned by a gallant crew
And she'll sail the seas in the silent breeze
Till she reaches the port named You.

FIREMEN PAY TRIBUTE TO DECEASED MEMBERS

Assemble in Auditorium of Bristol M. E. Church Sunday Afternoon.

W. H. BOWN WAS THE ORATOR

On Sunday afternoon last the auditorium of the Methodist church, Bristol, was filled to its capacity by the members of the Bristol Fire Department and their friends to pay tribute to the memory of comrades who had departed during the year 1914.

Among the invited guests were Battalion Chief William Farrett and Frank Fole, of the Philadelphia Department, and Chief John Leithead, of the Germantown Department.

In compliance with the orders of Chief Franklin Gilkeson, Companies 3, 4 and 5 met at their respective houses and proceeded to the firehouse of Company No. 2. At three o'clock the fire whistle sounded and the bells on the various houses tolled. At this signal the companies proceeded down Pond street to Market, thence to Wood street, where they were joined by Company No. 1 and their visitors. The body of men then wended their way to the Methodist church where seats had been reserved for them.

As the firemen entered the church an orchestra composed of B. Frank Conner, Jr., Prof. Harry Brumbaugh and Lester Thorne, violins; James Lefferts, Charles B. White, cornets, and Miss Gertrude Lefferts, organ, played "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

Chief Gilkeson was in charge of the service and B. Frank Conner, Jr., the musical portion of the program. After the firemen had taken their places the congregation sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee," which was followed by an invocation by the Rev. Seaver M. Holden, of St. Pauls Episcopal church.

The church choir then sang the anthem, "Heaven is My Home," which was excellently rendered.

The scripture lesson of the afternoon was read by Dr. George M. Brodhead, who selected the 12th chapter of Romans.

Miss Rachel Brodhead beautifully rendered a contralto solo, "There's a Beautiful Home on High."

After the offering, Melvin Jeffries, secretary, read the names of the members of the various companies who had died during the year and as they were read in company groups, James Lefferts sounded the "taps." Following is a list of the deceased of 1914:

Bristol Fire Co. No. 1—Charles Pursell, November 29, 1914; John S. Smith, July 3, 1914.

America Hose, Hook & Ladder Co., No. 2—Joseph W. Johnson, November 24, 1914.

Good Will Hose Company, No. 3—William H. Hibbs, May 15, 1914; Thomas J. Clare, July 2, 1914; Lewis J. Hellings, September 1, 1914; J. Lovett Fine, November 1, 1914.

Beaver Fire Co., No. 4—John P. Tiedman, July 3, 1914; Levi C. Groff, October 18, 1914.

Enterprise Fire Co., No. 5—R. Chester Stover, December 7, 1914; John Angus, March 14, 1914.

A male quartette composed of Howard Coombs, B. Frank Conner, Jr., Charles B. White and James Guy sang "Waiting," which was greatly enjoyed by the audience.

Chief Gilkeson, in his opening remarks, referred to the gifts presented to the firemen of three hundred white carnations which were in the lapels of the firemen's coats, the gift of Jacob Schmidt and the design from Mrs. Emma DeWitt, which consisted of a broken circle, 41 inches in diameter, made of one thousand galax leaves and a dozen calla lilies, across which was a ladder five feet long, composed of hundreds of red carnations and smilax, the emblem standing on an easel six feet high. The Chief then introduced the orator of the day, Rev. William H. Bown. In his address he made an earnest appeal to the citizens of the borough for their loyal support to the firemen in their efforts to protect the homes of Bristol. He also eulogized the memory of the departed and paid glowing tribute to their lives and work. He said in part:

"Like many of you, who are present today, I accepted the invitation to attend the first annual service in 1908, because I felt that it was my bounden duty to do so, although I was only an honorary member of the Bristol Fire Department. But, when on Sunday, January 12, 1908, we assembled in this beautiful church building for the first annual memorial service of the Bristol Fire Department and saw such a large audience, we were inspired by a great hope and that hope has remained to this day. In fact, from that day to this, these annual services are recorded in the memory of each one of us, as memorable in the annals of the Bristol Fire Department, and in harmony with the impulses of every lover of Bristol citizenship, and today through the courtesy of the esteemed pastor of this church, Dr. Brodhead, and his official board, we are again permitted to gather amid the sounds of sacred and tuneful music, to do honor to the memory of our deceased comrades."

He referred at length to the Fire Committee of council, who are to study and work out the theoretical, as well as the practical questions of fire protection in Bristol.

"And back of these is the forceful and tireless Chief Gilkeson and his ever-alert official companions in danger. And back of these, again, are the men who sit in my presence, a great host of sturdy, vigorous fire fighters—men who know how to give and to take orders and who are always ready to lead where the stoutest heart might well hesitate to follow. Indeed as John C. Maule has recently said in print, 'The commendation of our fire department by our much beloved Burgess Scott is well deserved.'"

The speaker then spoke of the growth of the Bristol Fire Department and of the need of up-to-date apparatus that will help to prevent a serious conflagration, and stated that it is the duty of every citizen of the borough to support the firemen in every way possible. He made comparisons between the means of protection in the past and the efficient service of the present day.

He said that fire had caused calamities equal to, or greater than, the other causes of disaster, and that we in Bristol are not absolutely immune from a disastrous fire. And then he made an earnest plea for completion of the fund for a new pumping engine—for given a high wind, and two or three feet of snow and a few fire plugs out of service if such be possible, and it might not be long before the business, residential or mill district of our town would be in the cellar.

He also cited a fire scene where a little child appears at the window, and amid the roaring flames and fearless of the danger a fireman rushes up the ladder into the smoke and flame-filled room and brings the child to safety, and for his reward—well, reward he spurned

For him the father's generous bosom burns,
For him on high the widow's prayer shall go,
For him the orphan's pearly teardrops flow,
His boon, the richest e'er to mortal given,
Approving conscience and the smile of Heav'n"

Mrs. James W. Shipe then sang "Just Beyond the Vale of Years," in her usual pleasing manner, after which the congregation sang "Shall We Gather at the River," followed by the benediction by Rev. Seaver M. Holden.

Lost Roll of Bank Notes.

Fred Vorhis, clerk at the Mill street store of the Childs Grocery Company, Bristol, took a load of groceries to Headley Manor on Saturday and collected $54 for the same. When he returned to the store the roll of notes was found to be missing and it is supposed that a hole in his pocket was the solution. No trace of the money has been found.

FORMER BRISTOL WOMAN ENDS HER LIFE BY GAS

Two Boys Asphyxiated in Room While Trying to Save the Mother's Life.

SISTER OF MRS. BABBINGTON

Because she believed that she was not the social equal of her husband, Mrs. Anna Freeth, 30 years old, 3804 North Sixth street, committed suicide Saturday by inhaling gas, and through this act caused the death of her own child, Roy Edwin Wainwright, 4 years old, and her stepson, Mason Freeth, 7 years old, who were overcome while trying to drag the body of the woman from the gas-filled room. The little boys died a few minutes after being admitted to the Samaritan hospital.

Mrs. Freeth was formerly Mrs. Anna Wainwright, and was a sister of Mrs. Robert Babbington, of Jefferson avenue, Bristol. The deceased formerly lived on Wood street, opposite the Enterprise Fire Company house. After her first husband, Wainwright, was killed in a railroad accident at Beverly, N. J., she resided with her sister, Mrs. Babbington. About two months ago she was married to Freeth.

After the woman's tragic death a note was found lying on a table in the parlor, an inkspot on the table cover bearing mute evidence of the woman's nervousness while penning the message. The missive was addressed to her husband, Charles Freeth, a salesman for a refrigerator company, and in it the wife made a pathetic statement that she contemplated suicide because she imagined she was a hindrance to her husband, and that she was his social inferior. The note reads as follows:

"Dear Charles:

"There is no use worrying you this way any longer. I cannot get along for some cause. You are a dear man and the boys are two dear children. It worries me when I think of everything. Nothing you did to me made me do this. You did all you could. Don't stay single, for I am not worthy of any respect, but do right with the children. This last week I have tried to get along like other people, but it seems I am of the disposition to worry and I make trouble wherever I go. Don't go back, now that you have your start. Go on with your school"—Freeth recently organized the Mechanics' Improvement Association for the instruction of amateur draughtsmen—"and get married to some respectable woman. I really don't know anything and I can't seem to do anything except worry over lots of mean things I have done and said. I look around at other people and see how they get along. I am not jealous, but I am stupid.

"Charles, don't worry. There is nothing to worry about. Take good care of the children and get some one with good experience to care for them. I feel awfully sorry for you to think that you are getting along so good, and then to have to face this. But my conscience worries me so I can't get along. I have been true to you, although I can't seem to get through with all that is expected of any woman. It seems that everything I have said has been a complaint or something far from right."

The note was unsigned. When Mr. Freeth read the note he was overcome with grief.

"Oh! That my wife should have done this!" he cried. "I tried to be as good to her as I knew how. I even bought a little automobile the other day, thinking it would please her, but all seemed in vain. She imagined that because I had a little more education than she did that I was much better than she. I tried to drive this thought from her mind, but she was continually harping on the subject. When I left her this morning she was unusually happy, and I began to think that better days were coming to us."

Mrs. Freeth had placed a chair in the shed near the gas range and had opened the four burners to their fullest capacity. She seated herself in the chair and calmly awaited death. When the two children came in about dinner time for their meal, they missed their mother, and when they found the kitchen door shut they burst into the shed and found their mother dead. There was evidence that the little boys had been overcome trying to drag the body of the woman to safety.

When Mrs. Ella Walton, who lives next door, smelled the gas fumes, she and Elmer Witting, a parcel post driver, who called to the house to deliver mail, burst open the front door of the Freeth home. Running into the shed they found the three bodies. There was life in the children, however, and Witting placed the mother and boys in his auto delivery wagon and rushed them to the Samaritan hospital. The woman was pronounced dead, and the two little boys died shortly after being admitted.

Freeth said Saturday night that two days before his wife took the children to the home of a friend on North 9th street. When Freeth returned home that night he found a note pinned to the lace curtains in the parlor stating that she was a millstone about his neck and that she would never return home alive. Freeth, suspecting her destination, went to the 9th street house, where he found his wife and dissuaded her from her purpose.

The Freeths were married on November and have been living in the neighborhood only a short time. Freeth had been a widower for two years, and each had one child.

WAGON SUNK TO THE HUBS

Walnut Street is in a Deplorable Condition.

There are very few towns of the size that have better macadamized streets than Bristol. Most of the thoroughfares are in good order. One notable and distressing exception is Walnut street, from Cedar street to Wood street, which is a disgrace to any civilized community. Walnut street is one of the main highways leading from the east side of the borough to the railroad station, the postoffice and to the Fourth ward, yet the above mentioned square at this time is almost impassable for teams.

On Monday afternoon a large wagon drawn by four horses, belonging to John J. Tyrol, became mired on Walnut street, opposite Wilson street, and it required the services of a number of men with shovels to get the wagon out of the predicament after it had been unloaded. The wheels sunk up to their hubs.

Earlier in the day an automobile became stalled near the same place.

William Deiss, a little Aid Society boy, has come to make his home with Mrs. C. Y. Stradling.

C. Y. Stradling left home last Saturday for a short visit with relatives, and planned to be in Harrisburg at the inauguration of Governor-elect Martin G. Brumbaugh.

Our best wishes attend Mr. and Mrs. Andrew M. Umstat, who have just recently passed their golden wedding day. All but a few of the fifty years have been spent in this vicinity. As Mr. Umstat is in poor health, his milling business is carried on by his sons, Seneca and Edwin.

ANNUAL LIBRARY MEETING

President Peirce in Annual Report Reviews Activities of the Year.

At the annual meeting of the Bristol Library held yesterday the president, William C. Peirce, presented the following report:

To the Stockholders of the Bristol Library:

As the Bristol library was founded in the year 1878 this is the 37th annual report.

If age is anything of a criterion we should be able to make a showing of no mean growth. From some points of view we are able to do this, from others there is much to be desired, very much. We can show a healthy and steady growth of volumes upon our shelves. We can exhibit a fairly prosperous state of finances.

Taking into consideration our limited number of shareholders and readerships there is a good degree of activity in the distribution and use of books and magazines.

It would be a source of much gratification if we could have a reading room attached to our main library room, and could we also have our doors open daily. Occasional visits to towns of half the population of our town, that enjoy these facilities, and even greater, are apt to make us somewhat envious but it would seem that for the present we can but "pursue the even tenor of our way" and "live in hopes" that some kind and interested friend or friends will see fit to "give us a lift," that will enable us to progress in the directions mentioned, and this can only be accomplished by means of what is known as the "hard cash."

A suggestion comes to us that the library should offer more inducements to the uprising generation for a share of its patronage. This is a matter worthy of consideration by the board.

Miss Lawrence, librarian, conducted a very successful pie and cake sale, thus adding a snug sum to our treasury. The library room and books are in good order. We are again indebted to Mr. Charles E. Scheide, of New York, for his valued contribution of books.

The report of Miss Gilkeson, treasurer, shows

A NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT

Ladies Union of Presbyterian Church Entertained Members and Congregation.

On last Monday night the Ladies' Union of the Bristol Presbyterian church very delightfully entertained the members of the church and congregation at a social. The unpleasant weather did not interfere with the attendance as those who had anticipated going evidently knew what was in store for them.

A very interesting amusement was indulged in for an hour or more that afforded much fun. On about twenty tables, with six seated at a table, were placed topics for discussion. At the tap of the bell those at the tables changed, three going up and three down.

Some of the topics to be discussed were:

"If you could take a trip, where would you prefer to go?"

"What do you think of the modern inventions—the vacuum cleaner, Thermos bottles, fireless cookers?"

"If you had a million dollars what would you do with it?"

"Do you approve of women voting?"

"What do you think of the increase railroad fares?"

"What is your opinion of "Billy" Sunday?"

"Do you think things in general today are an improvement over our grandmothers' days?"

During the evening the following musical programme was well rendered: Piano solo, Miss Clara King; vocal solo, Miss Gladys Renk; vocal solo, B. F. Conner, Jr.; vocal solo, Mrs. W. H. H. Fine; vocal solo, B. F. Conner, Jr.; piano solo, Miss Lefferts.

At the close of the entertainment sandwiches, olives, pickles, coffee and stuffed dates were passed around. It was a very pleasant evening in every way and much enjoyed by all present.

REUNION ENJOYED BY MYSTIC CHAIN

Bristol Members Took Prominent Part in the Program.

Because of the success of the county reunion of the Mystic Chain lodges held Saturday night in the Morrisville castle room, State Select Marshall E. J. Midwood is planning to hold these gatherings more frequently.

The hall never looked prettier than it did Saturday night. While representatives were present from every Mystic Chain castle in Bucks county, the largest delegations came from Bristol, Newtown and Buckingham. The lodgemen from Buckingham came in a large auto truck, accompanied by a fife and drum corps.

During the evening, Miss Bessie Pope, daughter of former Burgess William J. Pope, one of the past commanders of the castle, played the piano.

After the banquet, speech making was in order. Supreme Representative J. C. Adams, of Bristol, gave a few remarks on the growth of the supreme body; Past Commander George Sheppard, also of Bristol, spoke on the condition of the Bristol lodge.

Past Commander James Guy, of Bristol, entertained with a vocal selection. District Deputy John M. Groom, Past Commander Watson, Past Commander Clarence Carver and Past Commander Buckman, all of Buckingham, spoke on the conditions found in secret societies.

Sir Knight Hull, of York Castle, gave a short address, and Select Marshal Midwood also spoke. Past Commander Pope gave the history of the Morrisville Castle up to the present time. Past Commanders James H. Cox and Jesse White, charter members of the lodge, responded with a few remarks. Past Commanders E. H. Sutterly, the new local postmaster; Ralph Sweeting, William Meirs and William Rickey gave short talks. Fred Sysbesma, formerly of this place, but now of Florida, spoke on "Fraternalism." John Felsberg rendered several humorous vocal solos.

CELEBRATED ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Garr Entertained Fifty-five Guests at Dinner.

One of the delightful social events of the season occurred last Sunday, when Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Garr entertained at dinner at their home on Radcliffe street, Bristol, in honor of their tenth wedding anniversary. Fifty-five guests were present from Bristol, New York, Trenton, Burlington, Atlantic City, Douglassville, Pottstown, Philadelphia and Overbrook, and also members of the Five Hundred Club of which Mrs. Garr is a member.

Rev. Mother Katherine Drexel sent six young colored girls who are in training at the the Cornwells convent, to do the serving of the eight courses.

The dining rooms were beautifully decorated with red roses and narcissus.

Many who have tasted that savory dish, Finnan haddie, know little of its origin. Its correct name is Findon haddock, derived from the Scotch village of Findon, lying on the seacoast some six miles south of Aberdeen.

BRISTOL IMPROVEMENT CO. ANNUAL MEETING

All Officers Re-elected and Treasurer and Directors Make Reports.

1001 SHARES ARE REPRESENTED

The thirty-eighth annual meeting of the stockholders of the Bristol Improvement Company was held Tuesday afternoon in the office of William H. Grundy & Co., when the following officers were elected:

President, Joseph R. Grundy; George A. Shoemaker, secretary; William V. Leech, treasurer, and Joseph R. Grundy, George A. Shoemaker, Charles Leedom, Howard I. James and John H. Woolston, directors.

The Improvement Company was incorporated in 1876 and was the means of starting Bristol's industrial expansion. It built and formerly owned the mills of William H. Grundy & Co., the wall paper mill, Leedom's mill, the Star mill, the Harkins foundry and a mill for Harned & Company. All of these properties have since been sold with the exception of the foundry and the paper mill, which are still owned by the Improvement Company.

At Tuesday's meeting 1001 shares of stock were represented in person or by proxy. In the absence of the president Robert Clark was elected chairman. The treasurer's and the board of directors' reports were read and approved.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The directors' annual report was as follows:

Bristol, Pa., January 19, 1915.

To the Stockholders of the Bristol Improvement Company, Greeting —

Your Board presents this, the thirty-eighth annual report. Both properties now owned by the company are rented.

We are pleased to announce that during the year the wall paper mill has been leased for a period of five years at an increased rental to the Bristol Wall Paper Company, Mr. Henry Gledhill, president.

We shall not feel the increased rental at the present time as much of it will have to be spent for repairs to the property, which of course, will make the property more valuable.

The cost of repairs and improvements to the paper mill during the year was $1917.99. The larger part of this was paid for a new slag roof on the main mill costing $1384.

The foundry is rented to the T. B. Harkins Foundry Company, and the repairs for the year amounted to $90.45.

The following is a statement of the company at this date:

"BILLY" SUNDAY AIDE TO HOLD A REVIVAL HERE

Will Continue for Three Keeks, Beginning February 4.

CHORUS CHOIR TO ORGANIZE

Rev. William Asher, of Rev. "Billy" Sunday's aides, is coming to Bristol and will conduct a revival here for three weeks, beginning Thursday, February 4.

The pastors of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist churches of the borough have held several conferences relative to plans and committees of citizens have been appointed to work in conjunction with the ministers.

Rev. Asher is one of Sunday's chief evangelists who devotes his efforts to suburbs of the cities where his chief happens to be located.

A feature of the revival will be cottage prayer meetings which will be held in the homes throughout the borough. Mrs. Asher makes a specialty of addressing these prayer meetings.

A large chorus choir will be organized for the revival services. The special song books will soon be placed on sale at Fabian's and Young's drug stores and at Tracy's news agency.

The complete plans have not yet been made nor the place for holding the meetings selected, but they will probably be held in the Methodist church, which has the largest seating capacity.

EARLY BIRD CANDIDATES

Aspirants for County Office in the Field With Approval of Republican Machine.

Although the primary elections will not be held until next September, candidates for office in Bucks county are already active, especially in the Republican ranks. The leaders have practically settled on the candidates for most of the numerous offices to be filled next fall.

Charles Brown, constable of the First Ward of Bristol, is an aspirant for Clerk of the Quarter Sessions; Charles Gauts, of Morrisville, for sheriff and Horace G. Reeder, of Newtown, for Recorder of Deeds. These men are said to possess the approval of the organization. The candidate for county treasurer will come from the upper end of the county.

Through Cars to Frankford.

M. J. Hill, manager of the Trenton, Bristol and Philadelphia Street Railway Company, announces that commencing February 1st all cars will run through to Frankford, thus obviating the change of cars at Torresdale. This will be a great covenience to the patrons of the road.

Committees Appointed at Harrisburg.

Among the appointments made at Harrisburg on Wednesday are noted the following from Bucks county's representatives: Assemblyman Fretz, on the Iron and Coal committee; Assemblyman Pickering, Manufacturing and Public Roads. Senator Buckman, Senate Appropriations.

WORK AND THE EYES.

The wide known fact that, when using the eyes for any near work, the illumination should come from the left side rather than the right is often disregarded. Yet any one who considers the matter of little importance once demonstrates to himself the difference, and he will never forget it.

Take a pencil and paper and try to write while in such a position that the light will fall from the right side. The shadow of the hand or pencil or both is thrown on the paper in such a way as partly to cover the characters one is making. This necessitates a closer viewpoint and a conscious strain on the eyes.

Now let the position of the writer be reversed so that the light falls on the work from the left side. He will notice that the shadows fall away from the work he is doing and leaves the field well lighted. In making the change he cannot help but notice the feeling of ease that immediately is experienced by the eyes.

This applies to any other kind of near work in which the fingers work under the guidance of the eyes. This fact should be remembered in planning school rooms, workrooms, offices and any places where steady close work is to be performed.—Journal of the American Medical Association.

STARVED INTO GOODNESS.

Why Crime Is Rare Among the Caribs of South America.

In the whole wide world there is not a class of people to be found who inflict severer punishment upon themselves than the Caribs of Central America.

Their religion, which is one of the most peculiar kind, demands self punishment for sins intentionally or unintentionally committed. The punishment takes the form of starvation and close confinement.

If the sin be in the form of a lie, no matter whether it is calculated to injure another or not, the sinner goes without either food or drink for three days, at the end of which it is believed that the offender has paid the penalty for his or her sin. Blaspheming and using bad language are punishable by absolute starvation for two days. Assault, drunkenness and other serious sins call for four days' starvation for one week, three days' starvation for the second week, two days' starvation for the third week and one day's starvation in the fourth week.

All sins are punished with starvation. For that reason crime is very low among the Caribs, who are among the best behaved and most truthful people in the world.—London Telegraph.

Fear of Premature Burial.

The fear of premature burial, which prompted the late Lord Burton to direct by his will that his heart should be removed from his body, has caused many well known men and women to order a surgical operation to be performed upon their bodies. Harriet Martineau left her doctor £10 to amputate her head, and Lady Burton directed that her heart should be pierced with a needle. The late Edmund Yates left instructions that his jugular vein should be severed, with a provision that a fee of 20 guineas should be paid for the purpose. Literary persons appear to have been particularly afraid of premature burial. Bishop Berkeley, Lord Lytton, Hans Andersen and Wilkie Collins all took measures to protect themselves from it.—Westminster Gazette.

Numbering Houses.

The now almost universal custom of numbering private houses so that they can be easily identified is only a little more than 400 years old. It was in the year 1512 that this idea struck the fancy of a Parisian architect, but it was not until nearly three centuries later that the system became at all general.

In Berlin an eccentric method of numbering the houses was first adopted. They were numbered without any reference whatever to the name of the street. A tenant's address would be described merely as "1000 Berlin." In St. Petersburg an excellent way of displaying the numbers is employed—little lanterns bear the numbers on the glass, so that they can be seen after dark. "In the later Stuart times," says Macaulay, "the houses of London were not numbered, and there would, indeed, have been little advantage in numbering them, for of the coachmen, chairmen, porters and errand boys of the city a very small proportion could read. It was necessary to use marks which the most ignorant could understand. The shops were, therefore, distinguished by painted or sculptured signs, which gave a very gay and grotesque aspect to the streets."—New York American.

Curious Gaelic Alphabet.

A very curious and distinguishing characteristic of the Gaelic alphabet is that nearly every letter thereof is represented by a tree. While the alphabet of ancient Gaelic comprised but seventeen letters, that of modern Gaelic has eighteen. But with the new forms, as with the old, the letter is represented by a tree. The exceptions are "g," "q" and "u," which stand for "ivy," "furze" and "heather."

The alphabet now stands: Ailm, beithe, coll, dair, eagh, fearn, gath, huath, iogh, luis, muin, nuin, oir, peith, ruis, suil, teine, ur, all of which is equal to saying: Elm, birch, hazel, oak, aspen, alder, ivy, whitethorn, yew, rowan or quicken, vine, ash, spindle tree, pine, elder, willow, furze, heath. In the old Gaelic alphabet the letter "h" (the huath or whitethorn) does not exist. The alphabet is called the beithluis-nuin, because "b," "l," "n" and not "a," "b," "c" are the first three letters.

MOTHERS OF DELICATE CHILDREN

Should Read the Following Letter—Mrs. Slack's Story About Her Child's Recovery Is Entirely Reliable.

Palmyra, Pa.—"Three years ago my little girl had black measles which left her with a chronic cough and so awfully thin you could count all her ribs, and she coughed so much she had no appetite.

"Nothing we gave her seemed to help her at all until one day Mrs. Neibert told me how much good Vinol had done her little girl, so I decided to try it for my little one, and it has done her so much good she is hungry all the time, her cough is worse, she is stouter and more healthy in color and this is the first winter she has been able to play out in the snow, coasting and snow-balling without any ill effects."—Mrs. ALFRED SLACK, Palmyra, Pa.

We have such faith in Vinol we will build up your run down system and make them healthy, strong and robust, therefore we ask every frail, weak, sickly child in this vicinity to try a bottle of Vinol, which contains the tonic properties of cod liver and iron tonic elements.

We advise you to try a bottle and if you are not satisfied with the benefit derived we will return your money.

THE BIG REDWOODS.

One Tree Cut In 1900 Was Nearly Fourteen Centuries Old.

The biggest stands of redwood timber are in Del Norte, Humboldt and Mendocino counties, Cal., but there are isolated groups as far north as the Chetco river in Curry county, Ore., and as far south as the Santa Lucia mountains, Monterey county. The redwood belt is from twenty to forty miles wide, the trees growing on the west slopes of the coast range.

The enormous height and diameter of the redwood is due to the great rain fall in the autumn and winter, from thirty to sixty inches, and to the sea fogs which drift the coast in the summer. There are two types of the redwood, those which grow on the slopes and those on the flats or bottom lands. The slope redwood is the common type, and it grows mixed with other woods, such as red fir, tan bark oak and white fir. As the slopes become moderate, the altitude lower, the soil deeper and the water supply better the redwood stands by itself. In making the change he cannot help but notice the feeling of ease that immediately is experienced by the eyes.

This applies to any other kind of near work in which the fingers work under the guidance of the eyes. This fact should be remembered in planning school rooms, workrooms, offices and any places where steady close work is to be performed.—Journal of the American Medical Association.

Horrors of Naval Warfare.

Naval warfare had its horrors before the day of the mine and the submarine. Lady Dorothy Nevill, for instance, noted evidence given by a naval officer of the Nelson school: "Which was the most solemn and awful moment of a naval battle?" he was asked by a lady. "The moment before the battle, madam, when they sprinkled the sand on the decks to absorb the blood that was to flow," was the reply.—London Chronicle.

The Barrel.

The barrel is of great antiquity, and in point of time the cooperage industry is venerable. The good book mentions "sheet barrel" work, and nearly 2,000 years ago Pliny, the "specialist" writer of his time, devoted an article to the subject. With all his research he could locate the origin of the industry in piece only. Even in his time it was so ancient that the beginning was hidden in the maze of years.

Unique Decorative Effects.

"Pyrography is not as popular as it used to be," said Mrs. Wasserby.

"No," replied Mrs. Judkins, "but Mr. Judkins still does a little of it now and then."

"You surprise me. I had no idea that he had any artistic inclinations."

"He hasn't. He merely leaves lighted cigars lying on chair arms and the edges of tables."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Lifting Dead Weight.

There is a more or less popular belief that it is easier to lift up a living body and carry it some distance than to carry a small, compact "dead" weight, such as iron dumbbells. Somebody several thousands of years before any art of writing was invented imagined this thing and told it to his next door man. He told it and so all along the ages and centuries. Pure hallucination, along with hundreds of others now injuring this modern scientific age. If a person weighing 150 pounds appears lighter than anything weighing fifty or seventy-five pounds, it is simply because a distorted mind of some weak man imagined it, maybe 100,000 years ago. Same origin for all current myths.—New York American.

WINDS THAT WHISTLE.

The Sounds Come Only When the Air Waves Meet Resistance.

Did you ever notice that although you may feel the force of the wind when you are out in it, you do not hear it whistle unless you are close to a building? This is because the sound is produced according to the same principles as apply to the production of the tones of a pipe organ or any instrument on which the tones are produced by blowing.

In order to make the whistling sounds we hear from the wind it is necessary for it to blow against something. That is why we hear it when we are in the house or some other building.

The whistling is caused by the wind blowing past the sharp edge of some obstacle in its path or finding its way through small openings offering some sharp edged resistance.

If you blow through a long tube or pipe you will produce no sound, but if there is an opening with a sharp edge near the end where you blow the blowing will cause a distinct sound. It is on this principle that all small whistles, organ pipes and wind instruments of an orchestra are made.

Another way in which the wind produces sounds is by blowing against objects which vibrate. A curious instance of this is the humming volume of sound produced by the wind blowing through a group of telegraph wires and which may be noted, even when there is not a great force of wind, by placing the ear against a telegraph pole. —Boston Herald.

THE "FORLORN HOPE."

Real Meaning of a Misused Term in the Vocabulary of War.

In the tales of every war one hears a great deal about "forlorn hopes." The term is one of the most misused in the vocabulary of war. It is commonly understood to mean a desperate venture. It really means "lost troop"—that is, "detached troop."

The word "hope" in the phrase is not an English but a Dutch word, "hoop" meaning literally "heap" and secondarily body of troops. The word "forlorn" represents the Dutch "verloren" —lost. A "verloren hoop" was a detached body of troops thrown out in front of the main line of battle to find the enemy and engage them first. This was the regular sixteenth and seventeenth century practice, and, though it was one of the more dangerous kinds of service, it was not desperate or, in the English sense, forlorn.

Nowadays much the same work is done by the detached bodies of cavalry which are thrown out before the main line of battle without communications or supplies to find the enemy. "Capitulation" is another term of war which is very loosely used. It does not mean surrender, but surrender on terms. In fact, it means the terms, not the surrender. It is from the Latin "capitulum," or "heading" (from which is derived our word "chapter"), and a capitulation is a formal treaty of surrender drawn up under a series of headings or chapters embodying the terms on each point.—Manchester Guardian.

Teakwood.

The fact that teakwood is coarse grained, greasy to the touch and possesses an offensive odor kept it in disrepute with English shipbuilders until 1897, when British shipbuilding and railway interests began to recognize the value of Indian teak. During the next seven years all the shipbuilding countries in the world joined in an ever increasing demand for this timber until its prices were forced up to a figure much beyond their normal rates. It has practically become the staple of the local wood industry for the greater part of the entire Indian continent. Teak is being freely planted by the Indian forestry service in the important civil stations all over India, even as far north as Saharanpur, Debra Dun and Lahore.—Argonaut.

Paid the Fine.

A policeman in a country village where "raises" were rare one day came across his landlord in an incapable state. The chance was too good to be missed, so the landlord was summoned and fined to the amount of 14s. 6d. The fine was paid, but the policeman's feelings can be better imagined than described when, on reaching home, he found his rent had been raised sixpence per week, and so it continued for twenty-nine weeks, when the landlord coolly informed him that he had paid the fine and could have his house at the former rent.—London Answers.

Making a Distinction.

Johnny, who observed things carefully for so youthful a person, answered:

"Caution is when you're afraid and cowardice is when the other fellow's afraid."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Outer Gardens of Paris.

The city of Paris has large and varied plantations just outside the fortifications, where flowers, exotic shrubs and trees are raised. One hundred and thirteen bathhouses for plants, exotic shrubs and flowers are heated from one central heating plant, distributing hot water through a nine and one-half mile system of pipes. The object of this central heating organization is not, as the head gardener explains, with a view of economy. In fact, such a system is far more costly than separate installations for each group of hothouses, but is thus arranged to avoid the existence of a series of unsightly chimneys which would destroy the artistic effect of the grounds, which are more or less a public resort and show place.

Fond Recollections.

"Speaking of old times," said a member of the Reminiscence club, "I can remember when a waiter would say 'Thank you' out loud for a twenty-five cent tip."

"That's nothing," replied his companion. "I can remember when I would look at the list of dishes on a menu to see what I wanted instead of looking first at the prices to see what I could afford."—Washington Star.

TINY HAMMERS IN STEAM.

Billions of Flying Molecules Give the Gas Its Power.

There is an old Scotch proverb that "Many a mickle maks a muckle," which means that many little things put together make much. The power of steam is a case of this, for it can drive great boats through the water and it can tear up the greatest rocks. Yet all its power is due to the coming together of little units of power.

When we speak of steam we mean water vapor—water in the form of gas. This gas is formed under pressure and has power to expand. It is this expansive power that does the work. Afterward the gas becomes cool and condensed, so that we can see it, and that is what we call steam.

The power of the gas is due to the tiny molecules of water of which it is made. These are flying about in all directions trying to get loose and so striking against the sides of whatever hems them in. The force in one of these molecules is very tiny, for the amount of stuff in the molecules is so small. If you had a hammer smaller than you could see you could not drive a nail with it. But as there are billions of these little hammers flying about in the gas they are able to do all the work that steam does.—From "The Child's Book of Knowledge."

ANTIQUITY OF KILTS.

They Were Worn, It Is Said, by Soldiers of Ancient Assyria.

The kilt is a style of dress that is immensely old. The soldiers of Assyrian kings are said to have worn a sort of kilt, while, as we all know, the mountaineers of the Balkans regard it as indispensable.

It seems to have been worn in Scotland from prehistoric times, and, according to some authorities, was at one time only the plaid worn across the shoulders. In cold weather it was twisted around the waist, or perhaps it would be more correct to say that part of it was.

Kilted regiments are comparatively modern, as the first highland troops, the Black Watch, were recruited in 1725 and were called by their now historic name owing to the somber color of their tartans—black, blue and green.

When they were originally raised each company wore the tartan of its commanding officer, and when banded together in one regiment a special one was designed to prevent jealousy. The Seaforths wear the Mackenzie tartan, the Argyll and Sutherland the Campbell and the Gordons and Camerons the same as their name.—London Saturday Review.

Putting the K In Kant.

Kant, the Scoto-German, began his name with an alien "k" on the same principle that caused Murdoch, the Scottish coal gas discoverer, to bring his to an end with a "k." If you turn to Murdoch's biographers you find them explaining that Murdoch with a "k" is the English form of Murdoch with an "h." But the great gas man himself explained that he made the change in spelling "to oblige the English, among whom he lived." He found that they had a difficulty in giving "the full guttural pronunciation" to the last syllable, and so he made things easy.—London Chronicle.

The Retort Courteous.

Justice Day was a "hanging judge" and when on circuit expedited business in a summary manner. On one occasion the trial of a prisoner concluded at dusk, and the judge ordered candles to be lighted so that he could try another case that night.

O'Connor, a noted Irish barrister, defended and in protest against night work exclaimed, addressing the court:

"What, my lord, try men by night! What will men say? That justice is not done by Day!"

He obtained his end, and at the next sitting the accused was acquitted.—London Mirror.

Billiard Tables on Solid Rock.

Billiard tables supported on solid rock are among the novel features of a thirty-six room concrete residence located on one of the islands of the San Juan archipelago in Puget sound. Each table rests on a massive concrete base, which extends through an opening in the floor and has its footing on bedrock and is therefore as solid and as free from vibration as if it were a part of the island itself.—Popular Mechanics.

Thought She Knew Him.

A short time ago a surgeon had three leg amputations in a week. The unusual number caused talk in the surgeon's household, and his little daughter Dorothy was greatly interested. A few days after the last operation the surgeon's wife and little Dorothy were rummaging the attic. In a trunk was found a daguerreotype depicting a girl about eight years of age. The portrait, through a peculiarity of pose, showed only one leg of the subject, the other being doubled under her.

"Whose picture is that, mamma?" asked Dorothy.

"Mine. It was taken when I was a child not much older than you are now."

"Did you know papa then?"

"No, dear. Why do you ask?"

"I thought maybe you did, 'cause you've only got one leg."

The Russian Language.

Charles Sarolea in an article in London Everyman on "Thoughts on the Russian Language" notes that in its grammatical structure, as well as in its vocabulary, it is nearer than any other living tongue to the older Indo-European tongues like Sanskrit and Lithuanian, but that as a written and literary language, as a vehicle of prose the Russian language is almost of yesterday. It is today the dominant language of 170,000,000 of people. "Not must it be forgotten," he says, "that the Russian is the key to a dozen other Slavonic languages; that it is closely allied to the Bulgarian language and to the Servian language. And, finally, it has to be kept in mind that Saloniki or ecclesiastical Russian is the common sacred language of all the Greek orthodox Slav nations."

Capital of Holland.

A gentleman—to the best of our recollection, a retired linen draper—went into school one day with the intention of putting the fifth standard through their facings in the geography of Europe. He began, "What is the capital of Holland?" "Capital H," was the crushing rejoinder from the smart boy of the class. The ex-linen draper did not pursue his geographical inquiries further.—Cornhill Magazine.

Colored Diamonds.

Diamonds are in many colors, such as black, blue, red, pink, green and yellow. Black diamonds are extremely rare and come from Borneo. The Duke of Richmond owns one big black diamond that for centuries did duty as the eye of an Indian idol.

Illinois River.

The Illinois river was so termed from the Illini, a tribe of Indians on its banks. Another derivation is suggested in Isle aux Noix, island of nuts. Several derivations more or less fanciful are suggested by the etymologists and geographers.

An Engine That Wouldn't Down.

A light American automobile was sold to a tea planter of upper Assam, a region in the Himalayan foothills with scarcely any good roads and a rainfall of from 300 to 500 inches a year. Six months after it was purchased the planter's native chauffeur drove it into a washout on the Chesapunji road during a freshet, and it went rolling 500 feet into the rain swollen river. A week's search failed to reveal any trace of machine or driver. At the end of the rainy season the remains of the machine were found several miles below the point where the accident had occurred. The wheels were gone and the body battered almost beyond recognition, and it was only on the score of sentiment that the planter had the pieces gathered up and taken home by coolies. A month later while on a tour of Assam I saw the salvaged engine and part of the transmission gear set up over a well and actually pumping water to the planter's bungalow on the top of a high ridge.—World's Work.

Waylaying Mendelssohn.

After the London performance of "St. Paul" by the Sacred Harmonic society at Exeter hall in 1837 Mendelssohn's coach was waylaid at midnight on his way to Dover, but instead of being robbed the composer was presented with a silver snuffbox by a group of devotees. He had behaved with charming grace in an awkward incident. The London performance in question was to have been conducted by him. But the Birmingham festival was just due, and he was the great attraction there in the same oratorio. It was felt that his appearance as conductor in London at that juncture would detract from the importance of his visit to Birmingham. Mendelssohn saw the point and canceled his London engagement. But he attended the performance and was so winning to all concerned—audience, performers, officials—that he turned a disappointment into a scene of wild enthusiasm.

Old Roman Weddings.

Marriage in ancient Rome was a matter which was very often arranged by the parents of the bride and groom, and in those cases the bride and bridegroom were herded to the altar early, before they had a chance to grow up and become stiff necked and stubborn. The average age of the Roman youth who married at his father's behest was eighteen or twenty and of the girls thirteen to fifteen. It must be remembered, of course, that, like all the children of southern countries, boys and girls were more mature at an early age in Rome than in the countries to the north. There were two forms of marriage ceremony which might be performed—one, the "manus" service, by which the bride gave all her possessions to the groom, and the other, without "manus," in which the wife retained everything except what was a specific part of her dowry.
